Holidays To Spain: Must-Visit Places In The Country

Are you eyeing to spend your holidays to Spain? If yes, you have made an excellent decision! Spain is a beautiful country of diverse cultures, smiling citizens, pristine beaches, and mild climate. In fact, it is considered as a European tourist hotspot, with millions of people all over the world visiting the nation.

If this will be your first time in Spain, you might be confused as to which places you need to visit first. Here's a list of some of the popular locations if you are spending your holidays to Spain for the first time.

1. Madrid - nothing less than the capital city of the country, Madrid is world-renowned for its museums, tapas, and lively nightlife. Learn of its amazing history, have fun with its youthful atmosphere, and partake of its tasty cuisine. Madrid is also home to Prado, one of the largest museums on Earth.

2. Barcelona - this city is world renowned for its energetic nightlife, late-night eating, and historic avenues. Walk around the city and eat dinner at 12 midnight just as the locals do. You can also visit one of the many fine beaches in Barcelona during your stay.

3. La Tomatina - this small town speaks high volumes. Don't forget to head out there during the last Wednesday of August where the whole town joins in the largest tomato fight in the globe. Tons and tons of juicy tomatoes are hurled at each other, making it the messiest, most fun festival for many visitors.

4. Granada - no holiday in Spain is done without visiting the old Moorish settlement of Granada. Stroll around the beautiful gardens of the Alhambra, an old Moorish palace. Walking around the old avenues makes it feel that you are walking back in time.

5. Costa del Sol - if you love the beach, then Costa del Sol is the place for you. Laid back and featuring a huge number of pristine beaches, Costa del Sol is the ideal venue for relaxing and just lazing down beautiful afternoons.

6. Seville - if you want to learn more about Spanish history during your holidays to Spain, then visit Seville. The city is filled with churches, palaces, and historical sites.
