Prepare for any communication needs you may have on your trip. Purchase any connectivity devices you will require for mobile computing, and take the time to call your cell phone provider and evaluate potential costs associated with traveling. You may find that you will have to adjust your plan temporarily to accommodate the trip. Save yourself the shock of a large bill by planning properly.

If you are a smart-phone user, consider downloading a variety of travel-related apps before departing on a journey. Many useful applications are available for free, including ones for directions, nearby shopping locations, luggage check-in, airport amenities, and hotel reservations. There are even apps that will notify your friends and family immediately if you have been arrested.

Try to explain airport security to children. Before getting to the airport, it is a good idea to try to explain to them exactly what will happen. Airport security checks can be traumatic for a child if they don't know what is happening. Remember to stay close to your child at all times when they are going through the security check, and if possible, have one of the adults in your group go through before them, so they can see how simple it is.

Remember to get blankets and pillows right when you get on the plane, after the plane is full, all the blankets and pillows are usually taken. This will help keep you comfortable on the flight and reduce your stress afterward. Sometimes the simplest of things can make a big difference in your travel plans.

When you book through a website that is not an airline company, you are paying them something. Save money by booking the same fare directly on the airline's website. Airline websites might be more difficult to navigate, but you should be able to find the exact flight you are interested in.

When staying in a hotel abroad, use common sense safety. Keep your door locked and meet visitors in the lobby. Do not leave valuables laying about where a cleaner could find them, instead, use the hotel safe. Let someone know when you expect to return, if you will be out late.

If you are traveling abroad, it is a good idea to consult with a health professional that is knowledgeable of the health climate in your destination country. There may be vaccinations you need for diseases that are uncommon in your home country. There might also be laws concerning which medications are legal for you to bring with you, and if you have a medical condition using such medications, you will have to prepare accordingly.

When traveling, make sure to pack light. Most airlines charge large fees for over sized luggage and limit the amount that you are allowed to check-in without a fee. Save room for souvenirs for the return trip or you may find yourself having to pay these fees! Another thing you can do is take clothing that you do not necessarily want to bring back with you so that you can discard it if your luggage becomes too heavy.
